Saddam" bumper stickers?

In arid desert parts of the country is it the right thing to do to plant golf courses?

Do we drill a hole in the Arctic tundra for oil because gas is over $3.00/gallon or do we preserve the tundra's natural beauty by applying the "Not-in-my-backyard" reasoning?

In India it is illegal for doctors to reveal the sex of an unborn fetus to the parents because if the sex is known, the females are often aborted. Where should pro-choice advocates stand on this issue?

How much is too much? $4.00 for gas? Brokeback Mountain? The feigned indignity and horror over post-Saddam Abu Greb, when you can still see blood and gore on the walls from when it was a real torture chamber? The Bush dynasty? The Clinton dynasty? Rush Limbaugh? Michael Moore? Fruit Roll-ups? $5.00 for a bottle of water? And finally? the continuing assumption that commentators and columnists actually know what they're talking about simply because they are on TV or in print!

Betrayal

Editor: What is the subject of this betrayal? Five young baseball players thrown to the Winds because of official "panic," and the winds of "political correctness/advantage." Why can a couple of parents with "questionable" motives, hold the Wasatch School Board (WSB), hostage to wild legal threats?

Let's review the "case" of the supt. of schools, plus his willing followers, the school board, led and cheered on by his willing ally/acolyte, the school board chairman, versus the 2006 Wasatch High School baseball team. The incident I refer to, in which a blatant betrayal occurred, was the "hazing" incident in St. George, during a preseason tournament where the Wasatch Baseball Team was one of the invited teams, having been one of Utah's "star" class 3 teams for the previous years.

Let's introduce some of the "luminaries" that made this fiasco possible. First, there was the panicky mother of one of the team members; second, there were a couple of other parents who seemed to have their own "agenda" for jumping on the "bandwagon." Then, there is the publicity seeking district attorney in St. George, seeing a possibility of securing name recognition in the press for possible future political activity, and then there is the Wasatch School District Superintendent, joined by the majority of his "go-along" school board.

What did these five boys accused of "hazing" actually do? They playfully "pummeled," and "credit-card goosed" the fully clothed sophomores, who were for the first time, coming onto the varsity squad. These sophomores were along for a looksee by the coaching staff in a pre-season game. This was not a sexual abuse incident in any way, despite rumors spread by the above-involved people to the contrary.

Why would four seniors and a junior member of the team do this? Because it is reported by everyone who knows, that this practice had been done to them when they first come on the team, and is currently, and historically has been done by every varsity squad at Wasatch High,
